

John Butler

Professor John Butler is an artist and the Chief Executive Officer of EQ-Arts, a leading independent, international quality assurance and enhancement agency for European higher arts education. He is an Emeritus Professor of Art, Birmingham School of Art, Birmingham City University, where he was Head of School from 2003 – 2015. Butler was President of the European League of Institutes of the Arts (ELIA) from 2000-2004, where he initiated the Thematic Network for the Arts responsible for developing the rollout of the Bologna Declaration for the arts for the European Commission and this led to the establishment of EQ-Arts. Butler was responsible for founding two contemporary art galleries Spacex (1978) in Exeter and Eastside Projects (2008) in Birmingham and has curated numerous national and international exhibitions. He was awarded an Doctor Honoris Causa by University of Art & Design, Cluj-Napoca Rumania in 2004 and the University of Plymouth in 2007.