

Lars Ebert (Heidelberg, 1976) is managing board member and co-director of the cultural centre H401 in Amsterdam where he develops and implements European collaboration projects. He also works as an independent advisor in the area of higher education and the arts. He is a frequent facilitator, moderator and speaker during international events and serves on the boards of various international organisations in education, research and policy development in the arts.